time, the universe had become a dark one where most of the stars had died and the light from the remaining stars could not reach other galaxies due to the vast distances between them. The Futurians were able to escape their dying universe by the use of dimensional portals that allowed them to move to alternate realities

Darwin and his wife, Vivios, decided to remain on Homeworld to chronicle the end of the universe. Their plan was to use their personal dimensional gate to escape to the past at the precise moment at the end of everything. That way they would chronicle the relevant data while escaping the universe's doomed fate.

unknown energy surge caused the portal to fluctuate and Darwin and Vivios were caught in its destructive grasp. To Darwin's horror, he watched his wife get pulled into a separate rift by the cascading dimensional energy. He was helpless as he fell through the dimensional vortex.

scavengers arrived in Helios City. The aliens, known as the Collectors, attempted to steal the whole downtown section of the city with its buildings, park, and people included. Together with six like minded heroes, Darwin helped to put an end to the threat of the Collectors and saved the city.

Darwin never forgot Vivios. A day doesn't go past when he doesn't think of her. Inferno offered the resources of Zander Industries if it would help Darwin locate his wife but Darwin explained that he could not build a dimensional portal and the appropriate locator without specific Futurian components that do not exist on Earth in this time zone. As Omega Man, Darwin feels the need to help others as a form of atonement for being the reason his wife is lost to him. If he hadn't convince her to stay as long as they did in the dying future, they could have escaped it safely together.
